Dear Members,

Join us on November 19 at 3pm E.T. for a webinar on the path forward for women's economic security under the next U.S. President and the 119th Congress.

As the nation navigates a new political landscape, we will dive into key issues such as workplace equity, reproductive rights, affordable childcare and paid family leave. Our expert panel will discuss policy solutions to address these pressing challenges and analyze the political outlook for advancing women's overall economic well-being in the coming years.

By the end, you'll understand the impact of the changing political and economic landscape, how they impact your life and how you can build a stronger, more equitable future for women nationwide. Don't miss it!

SPEAKERS

Dr. Heather M. Boushey, Ph.D., 1997–98 AAUW American Fellow, executive director and chief economist at the Washington Center for Equitable Growth. Her research focuses on how to integrate inequality into economic thinking. The New York Times called Boushey one of the “most vibrant voices in the field” and Politico twice named her one of the top 50 “thinkers, doers and visionaries transforming American politics.”

Dr. Jamila K. Taylor, Ph.D., President and CEO of the Institute for Women’s Policy Research (IWPR), known for her leadership and expertise in maternal healthcare, reproductive justice, and structural barriers to healthcare access. IWPR works to shape policies that grow women’s power and influence, close inequality gaps, and improve the wellbeing of women and families.

Gloria L. Blackwell, CEO and main representative to the United Nations for the American Association of University Women (AAUW), known for being a thought leader and advocate for advancing gender equity for women and girls globally through education. AAUW is a driving force advancing gender equity through education, advocacy and research.
